Secretary of War Issues a Proclamation to All Combatants After a Conference With President Wilson; Command to Be Posted in Districts.

ANOTHER REGIMENT
SENT TO COAL FIELD

Department Head Himself to Issue Orders Directing Movement of Soldiers; He Explains Proclamation in Statement.

WASHINGTON, May 2.—Under authority of the President, Secretary of War Garrison today issued a proclamation calling upon the people in the strike district, of Colorado, to surrender all arms and ammunition to the United States army officers now in charge at the various troubled localities.

Secretary Garrison's proclamation, addressed to Maj. Holbrook at Trinidad, is in the most sweeping terms and demands the surrender of not only strikers, but the mine guards.

The text of the proclamation follows: "Whereas, under existing circumstances, the possession of arms and ammunition by persons not in the military service of the United States tends to provoke disorder and to excite domestic violence and hinders the restoration of peace and order, I, do, by the authority of the President of the United States, call upon and direct all persons not in the military service of the United States who have arms or ammunition in their possession to surrender the same to the nearest military officer in charge of the place herein designated. Receipts will be issued for all arms and ammunition so delivered. The above applies to individuals, firms, associations and corporations.

The officer in command at each place where troops are stationed is charged to post the proclamation. Government to Protect Properties. Secretary Garrison's determination to issue the proclamation for the surrender of arms was reached after mature deliberation upon reports from Maj. Holbrook at Trinidad. It was pointed out that in directing the surrender of arms to the army commanders at the respective stations, the Government assumes all responsibility for the protection of the property which individuals, associations, firms and corporations hitherto have been guarding on their own account.

Emphasis was laid upon the fact that the sweeping terms of the proclamation calling all "not in military service of the United States" to surrender their arms applies only to localities where the United States troops are present.

As the trouble districts are widely scattered throughout Colorado, no army officer will be in supreme command of the military forces sent into the State. Secretary Garrison will issue his orders directly to the officers in command of the forces in the various localities.

Garrison Explains Proclamation. In explanation of the proclamation, Secretary Garrison made the following statement: "I learn from the Coloradoan in Colorado that the use of firearms has been widespread. In the district from Walsenburg south, an area of about 400 square miles, there are at least 60 mines. They are difficult to reach. The strikers and those sympathizing with them have recently organized and armed themselves and the operatives have had hundreds of mine guards who are also armed.

"The State troops in certain localities have been ordered to disarm the strikers. Certain stores in Walsenburg were broken into by some troops connected with the State organization and articles were taken.

"Conditions in the Canon City district are similar to those in the Walsenburg district.

CHINESE, FEDERAL IMMIGRATION AID, MURDERED; 50 HELD

Haw Lin Shuck Shot at Hop Alley When Carrying Roses to White Wife.

PRICE PUT ON HIS HEAD

Inspector, Who Was Active in Running Down Law Violators, Had Asked Protection.

Federal authorities and police Saturday arrested or closely questioned virtually every resident of Hop Alley, the Chinatown of St. Louis, in an effort to clear the mystery of the murder of Haw Lin Shuck, Chinese interpreter and inspector for the United States Immigration Bureau of the Department of Labor.

Haw was shot to death in front of 10 South Eighth street, at 8 p. m. Friday, while carrying a bouquet of roses and a vase home to his white wife, with whom he lived at 3322 A. Moffitt avenue.

Mrs. Haw spent two hours Saturday going through the Hop Alley district in a search for evidence which might reveal the identity of the slayer. At the end of her quest she said she had learned nothing.

Fifty Chinese, living in the Hop Alley quarter, between Market and Walnut streets and Seventh and Ninth streets, are under arrest. They are endeavoring to make it appear the murder was the result of a war between rival Chinese "gangs" or secret societies, but Federal authorities do not place much credence in this explanation.

Haw had known for two years that a price had been put on his head because of his activity as a Government agent in running down Chinese who had come into the United States in violation of the immigration laws.

On March 14, 1912, Haw appealed to the police for protection. He said he had received a message that he must cease his activities or prepare for death. A few days after this notice was served on him, he said, a friend informed him that a number of St. Louis Chinese were raising a fund to hire a man to murder him.

Active in Lee Ling Case. Haw told the police at that time that he had incurred the enmity of a powerful Chinese gang because of his activity in the effort then being made to deport Lee Ling, a Chinese laundryman of Clarksville, Mo., for violation of the immigration laws. After being arrested and brought to St. Louis, Haw escaped from Haw while they were walking on South Eighth street, Feb. 2, 1913, almost on the exact spot where Haw was murdered. Lee never was recaptured, but Haw had three of his friends arrested and questioned. He also searched for Lee in many St. Louis Chinese laundries. Some laundries resented this. Haw told the police, and threatened to get even with him.

"Chinatown Mayor" Held. For a time police protection was given to Haw when he went into the Hop Alley district on Government business, but the vigilance was gradually relaxed. Haw told close friends he believed that sooner or later a plot to take his life would be carried out.

Haw ate supper Friday night at a restaurant at 21 South Eighth street, owned by Lee Bing, a Christianized Chinese, known as "Mother of China town." Lee Bing, who is held by the police, told a Post-Dispatch reporter that Haw was his partner in conducting this restaurant.

Lee Bing is also a partner of Lee Mow Lin in restaurant at 510 Market street, known as the Shanghai Low. A grocery at 17 South Eighth street was raided March 30 last by Government officers and a large quantity of opium was found there. Lee Mow Lin was arrested and is awaiting trial on a charge of dealing in opium without paying the Government license.

Found Dead on Sidewalk. Lee Mow Lin is one of the Chinese pending an investigation of the murder.

Who gave the tip on which the secretary was raided has been kept a secret by Government officials. James R. Dunn, chief immigration inspector, said it was no part of Haw's duty to inform the Government as to contraband dealing in opium, but that suspicions may have fallen on him after the Lee Mow Lin raid because of his intimate knowledge of conditions in Hop Alley and his known connection with the Government service.

Sgt. Matthews and Patrolman Mitchell were near Eighth and Market streets at 8 p. m. Friday when they heard four shots. They ran south on Eighth street and near the mouth of an alley on the east side, between Market and Walnut streets, they found a man later identified as Maw Lin Shuck, lying dead on the sidewalk.

A white man, apparently greatly excited, approached the policemen and told them he had seen a short man fire the shots and then run west to H. Alley. After giving this information the white man mingled with the crowd that quickly gathered and his name was not learned.

At first it was thought Haw had been stabbed as well as shot. An autopsy by Dr. Louis Brandenburger showed he was struck by three bullets, one of which passed through his heart from the back. This bullet seemingly struck a bone and was flattened before it emerged behind the ribs on the left side. The emerging wound closely resembled such a

Mrs. Alice Herring's Action in Case of Inquiry in Policeman's Conduct.

Mrs. Alice Herring, wife of Dr. William Herring of 5209 A. Page boulevard, filed suit in the Circuit Court Saturday against Police Captain Patrick J. Gaffney and Police Inspector John McDaniel for $25,000 on account of alleged libelous statements made by them last Monday in connection with an investigation of Policeman Emil Kals, which resulted in his dismissal Friday by the Police Board.

The statement alleged in the petition to have been made by the defendants was that on April 22, at 11:15 p. m., Policeman Kals visited the flat occupied by Dr. and Mrs. Herring, during the absence of Dr. Herring, and remained therein about 30 minutes.

Mrs. Herring asks $10,000 actual damages and $15,000 punitive damages.

Kals, at his trial before the Police Board, testified he was summoned by Mrs. Herring to her flat to look for burglar. She told him she had heard a man prowling about.

In this he was corroborated by the physician's wife. Dr. Herring testified his wife was in constant fear of burglars and that the slightest noise would disturb her. He said he believed the charge against the patrolman was based on unreliable gossip.

Harry Bulger and his wife, who occupy the flat beneath the Herring home, testified they saw Kals enter the Herring home three times on the night of April 18, when Dr. Herring was on a trip out of town.

Lieut. Harry Walsh said he went to the Herring home the night of April 22, after being informed over the telephone that Kals was there. He said he rang the doorbell repeatedly, but received no response and that about 15 minutes later Kals emerged from the back way.

Kals joined the force in 1909. He is married and lives with his wife at 423 Anderson avenue. Mrs. Herring is 43 years old.

DIAMOND NECKLACE
TO BE M'ADOO'S
GIFT TO HIS BRIDE

Washington Hears Fiance and Others Plan Rich Present for President's Daughter.

WASHINGTON, May 2.—A diamond necklace, it is rumored, will be the gift of William Gibbs McAdoo to Miss Ellen Randolph Wilson upon their marriage next Thursday. Several other gifts have already been chosen for the bride-elect, including a pair of vases to be given by the senators of the Treasury Department. These of the celebrated Paul Revere pattern, are of remarkable beauty, being about 18 inches high and of rigid simplicity. They bear Miss Wilson's monogram. Another of the gifts is to be a handsome opal pendant, mounted in green gold, the gift of Mrs. Burleson, wife of Postmaster-General Burleson.

As yet no present has been chosen by the Senate, although a committee of senators is said to have the matter under consideration at the present time. Their gift to Miss Jessie Woodrow Wilson was a silver service, the gift chosen for the present occasion by the House.

Citizens from the bride's family not living in Washington will include considerable silver as well as a large chest of wedding linen embroidered with her initials. Members of the Cabinet are waiting for Miss Wilson's return from New York in order to send their gifts. Most of them will bear some inscription which will add to their historic value. The gifts, in general, are expected to be of a less pretentious nature than those which the last White House bride, Miss Wilson, is still in New York and will devote today to completing the preparations for her troupeau. She will leave there in time for the dinner to be given in her honor and that of Secretary McAdoo by Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Daniels at Blue Oak tomorrow afternoon. This dinner, although informal, is expected to be one of Mrs. Daniels' triumphs, as her rare knack in such matters has made her entertainments famous in the national capital, and several unique features are expected.

MEDIATION GOES ON
DESPITE CHANGE
MEXICAN MINISTERS

Ruiz Succeeds Rojas in Charge of Foreign Affairs and Is in Line for Presidency, in Event of Vacancy—Carranza to Protect Americans, but Rejects Plan for Neutral Zone at Tampico.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 2.—Licentiate Esteban Ruiz has been appointed Minister of Foreign Affairs in the Huerta Cabinet, to succeed Portillo y Rojas, who resigned yesterday on request of a Cabinet committee of three, sent to him by Huerta, who objected to his pacific policy in the present crisis.

After a half-hour conference with Secretary of State Bryan, Brazilian Ambassador da Gama said that he had been informed of the appointment of Ruiz and that he did not fear any interference with the mediation negotiations as a result of the change.

The Spanish Ambassador, Mr. Riano, was officially informed by cable today of the selection of Ruiz and he carried the announcement at once to the Argentine legation. The mediators were immediately called together and a conference began with the Spanish Ambassador taking part.

It was learned later that the mediator envoys were expecting the arrival in Washington of representatives of both the Huerta Government and of the Constitutionalists. When the Mexican factions would send representatives here was problematical, but the diplomats hoped to have someone on the ground with whom they could confer.

Ruiz, the new Foreign Minister, was under secretary of Portillo. He was unknown to Huerta until introduced to him by Charles O'Shaughnessy one day just before the severance of diplomatic relations, when the charge could find no one else to take up an important matter with Huerta. He has assisted in the mediation negotiations and it is asserted that he will be in charge of the mediation plans.

Appointment Causes Speculation. Outside the mediation conference, the Ruiz appointment caused widespread speculation. The fact that he had been mentioned as probable Huerta commissioner in case the mediators proposed a commission to settle the entire trouble, led to the belief that Ruiz would pursue the same friendly policy that Portillo had shown in the negotiations up to this time. But in some quarters it was felt that Huerta himself was directing affairs with a strong hand, and that Ruiz was more amenable to Huerta's direction than Portillo had been.

It was pointed out that according to the Mexican Constitution the Minister of Foreign Affairs succeeds to the presidency in case of the President's retirement, when there is no Vice-President, as the case now is in Mexico. Portillo was in line for the presidency and Ruiz is now in that position.

This has been pointed out in Washington circles in connection with rumors that Huerta soon would resign and the knowledge that pressure was being brought upon him to do so. Ruiz has been in the Mexican Government in various capacities for many years, but never affiliated himself with any particular faction. His position has been analogous to that of an assistant secretary in the United States State Department.

Carranza's Stand No Surprise. The refusal of Carranza, rebel chief, formally to agree to the establishment of a neutral zone in the rich oil fields about Tampico, while it was variously interpreted, administration officials here held it could not be considered as having any bearing upon the mediation proposal that hostilities cease between Huerta and the Constitutionalists.

Carranza's attitude in the Tampico situation was not unexpected. Creation of a neutral zone there materially would handicap the rebels' investing operations. Reasons for Carranza's Delay. Carranza's delay in replying was given various interpretations. In some quarters it was favorably regarded, being expressed that the chief was giving careful consideration to the proposal. Elsewhere Carranza's silence caused some doubt over the hope of

National Funeral
for Vera Cruz Dead

WASHINGTON, May 2.—Sailors and marines who were killed at the occupation of Vera Cruz will be honored with funeral services of a national character on the arrival of their bodies aboard the United States cruiser Montana at New York, the Navy Department announced today.

Secretary Daniels said that arrangements for the services had been placed in the hands of Capt. Albert Gleaves, commandant of the Brooklyn navy yard, and Capt. H. O. Dunne, naval supervisor of New York harbor. They have been instructed to co-operate with the civil authorities in New York City, should there be any desire there to arrange for a general demonstration of respect. It was tentatively suggested that a funeral procession from the Battery to the Brooklyn Bridge and thence to the Brooklyn navy yard, followed by military mass at the marine barracks there, might be arranged.

Orders were sent to Admiral Rodgers by Secretary Daniels today that the Montana might leave when ready and it was believed she would get away by Monday, which would bring her into New York the first of the following week.

bridging the whole vexing question. Nevertheless, the envoys resumed their sessions, confident that their progress since the beginning of negotiations, six days ago, was unusually favorable. A feature that relieved fears of tension today was the report that Huerta had ordered the release at Zacatecas of Dr. Edward Ryan of the American Red Cross. He had been sentenced to death as a spy, but after vigorous representation had been made to Huerta through several sources, he ordered the American physician's release and safe conduct to the Brazilian embassy in Mexico City.

Americans Being Protected. Reports of anti-American sentiment brought by refugees from Mexico in Atlantic and Pacific ports were tempered with the explanation that in many instances the police and soldiers had exercised all their resources to prevent fatal rioting. News that there were 200 citizens of the United States in Mexico City, where they had gathered from various states, caused little apprehension. It was believed they would soon be taken to Vera Cruz.

While no ill effects of the vitriolic climate of Vera Cruz have been reported among the American soldiers and seamen, Surgeon-General Gorgas of the army today set on foot a movement to ward off the attack of disease (braced by the beginning of the rainy season. The main fight will be against the menace of the mosquito.

POLICEMAN KILLS SISTER-IN-LAW AND SELF IN HER HOME

Thomas M. Murphy Shoots Miss Nellie Fogarty After Helping Her Move.

HIS SON FINDS BODIES

Couple Had Been on Best of Terms and Motive for Slaying Is a Mystery.

Thomas M. Murphy, a policeman, shot and killed Miss Nellie Fogarty, his sister-in-law, at her home, 2814 Carrington street, about 6 o'clock Friday evening, and then shot himself through the heart. His body has been ascertained. Murphy had been a widower four years. His son, Joseph, who was 15 years old, was at the home of Mrs. Mary Fogarty, 2814 Carrington street, when the shooting took place. Murphy left his boarding place at 10 a. m. in citizens clothes and went to Miss Fogarty's home. She was moving from the lower to the upper flat and he helped her.

James Little of 2814 Carrington street, who lives on the back porch of his home, across the alley from the Fogarty home, when he heard two shots, about a minute apart. Five minutes later John Murphy came up the alley and entered his son's home. A moment later he came out and asked Little to go for a doctor. Miss Fogarty was lying on the kitchen floor dying. She had been shot through the head. There was also a bullet wound through the left thumb, received probably as she threw up her hand to ward off danger.

Murphy was lying on his back on a couch in the front room. His coat was off. He had shot himself through the heart.

John Murphy said his father and his aunt were on the best of terms. Murphy frequently visited Miss Fogarty at her home. He was 10 years old. She was 34.

Murphy shot by Negro. Murphy tried to arrest William Wright, a negro, at High and Morgan streets, in 1913, for carrying a concealed weapon. The negro shot Murphy in the abdomen and Murphy shot Wright in the leg. Wright escaped, but was later arrested in East St. Louis. Judge Davis Murphy of the Court of Criminal Correction declared that there was too much shooting by the police and discharged Wright. The negro and some of his friends made a demonstration as they were leaving the building and Patrolman "B" shot him. Since then a Captain, and Patrolman Thomas Down, tried to arrest the negro. There was a fight. Judge Murphy had deputy sheriffs arrest the policeman and keep them locked up three days until the Supreme Court ordered their release. When Murphy was able to return to duty he was made chief officer at the Central District. Later he has been placed on duty in the Magnolia District.

Both funerals will be held at 9 a. m. Tuesday from the home of Mrs. Anna Lay, sister of Miss Fogarty, 2814 Carrington street. Mrs. Lay said Murphy and her sister were so friendly that she would not have been surprised at an announcement that they were to be married.

TENANTS WIN $3350 AGAINST REALTY FIRM

A jury in Judge Grimm's Circuit Court, Saturday, returned a verdict for $3350 for Mr. and Mrs. John F. Evans against the Nevada Realty & Investment Co., and Beverly M. Nevada, president of the company, for alleged damages to furniture and punitive damages, when the company entered Evans' flat in the Nevada Apartments, 5004 Gates avenue, during the absence of the occupants, and removed the furniture, Aug. 27, 1912. According to testimony, the plaintiffs had leased a flat in the apartment for one year, beginning October, 1911, and were behind $100 in rent, and out of the city when the furniture was taken out. The plaintiffs alleged that their furniture was damaged, that some articles were lost and that considerable embarrassment was suffered on account of the action taken against them. The $100 rent subsequently was paid. The plaintiffs asked for $3350.

The only monetary loss shown in the world was "Beverly's" with white enamel, and her own.

New Man Comes to Front in the Mexican Crisis

The two leaders, members of the Cabinet military staffs and a number of lesser officials will take part in a love feast at the gubernatorial palace. As the troops were passing the Foreign Club, Gen. Carranza espied an American newspaper man among the spectators. He halted the procession once he turned aside to shake the foreigner's hand. The act was plainly intended to make evident to Mexican onlookers that the official attitude toward Americans is friendly. In fact, every Mexican understands that anti-foreign agitation or demonstration means death to the offender. When Carranza leaves here it is understood the rebel capital moves with him, first to Torreon and then with little delay to Monterrey. From the latter city he will direct the campaign against San Luis Potosi, Zacatecas and Aguas Calientes. The rebel-American phase of the occupation of Vera Cruz, which for a time after the issuance of Carranza's note to Secretary Bryan looked grave, is closed. Gen. Carranza assumes, and is believed to have official reason for so doing, that the Americans will complete the triumph of the revolution.

Third Wife of Wholesale Man Says Husband's Cruelty Caused Nervous Breakdown.

Mrs. Louise Dougherty Salvester of 418 Berlin avenue, third wife of Louis L. He had obtained a divorce in November, 1912 in Louisville, from Mrs. Blanche E. Hamilton Salvester his second wife. The third Mrs. Salvester said she first met her husband through his advertisement for a private secretary. Salvester was living in an apartment in the West End, with a housekeeper and man attendant. He virtually had retired from business, owing to trouble with his eyes, and desired the services of a secretary to keep in touch with his business connections and investments.

Mrs. Salvester said she had been employed only a short time when he proposed marriage, and that he pressed his suit persistently until she consented. She said she now is under the care of two physicians for a nervous affection resulting from her husband's treatment of her.

NEW HAVEN INQUIRY GOES OVER UNTIL WEDNESDAY

Commerce Commission Seeks Connection With Railroad's Money and Billard Company. WASHINGTON, May 2.—After a brief session today of inquiry into the financing of the Billard company and the numerous financial operations of the Metropolitan Steamship Co., the Interstate Commerce Commission today adjourned its investigation of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad until Wednesday. It is expected that John Billard will take the stand next week.

William Butler Tyler and Arthur C. Wynne, New York brokers, were questioned today as to transactions in the stock of the Billard company. The investigation of the various Metropolitan Steamship Co. concerns were the subject on which Walter E. Reed of Waterford, Me., was questioned at length.

The commission is endeavoring to determine whether the money with which the Billard company was organized came from the New Haven itself and suggestions of a "conspiracy to defraud" have been freely made about the hearing room.

CAILLAUX CHALLENGES DEFEATED OPPONENT

Husband of Woman Who Killed Editor Says Candidate's Bills Insulted Voters. PARIS, May 2.—Joseph Caillaux, who was re-elected to the Chamber of Deputies in the general election held last week, has challenged Fernand d'Allieres, the Liberal candidate to the Chamber against him in the Marnes district, to fight a duel.

Caillaux, who is the Minister of Finance after his wife killed Calmette, editor of Figaro, last March. The challenge was sent. It is explained here, however, that d'Allieres insulted the Marnes voters by posting bills saying clean elections would refuse to become "accomplices in crime."

Forbes districts. The two troops of the Twelfth were sent to the Boulder County district. Gov. Ammons urged that the point of recognition of the union be waived, but that the miners be permitted to maintain their organization. He urged further that the operators guarantee the employment of check weighmen; abolish the scrip system; observe the eight-hour law; permit employees to trade where they choose; insure observance of the semi-monthly pay day; observe to the letter all the provisions of the coal mine inspection law and employ again all strikers whose places had not been filled and who had not been guilty of law violation during the strike. The telegram included the letter of Gov. Ammons and says: "The strikers refused to accept the terms of settlement proposed by the Governor and approved by the operators and all the disorder and bloodshed in this State since Nov. 21 has been due to their attitude. We are now members of the United Mine Workers of America. We still consider the plan of the Governor legally and industrially sound and have never retracted our formal approval thereof."

U. S. SOLDIERS ARE ENFORCING ORDER

Several Outbreaks Are Reported, However, From Districts Guarded by Militia.

DENVER, May 2.—Comparative quiet prevails in the Southern Colorado coal fields, where the United States troops have taken command of the strike situation, but from the Northern Colorado fields, where State troops still are on duty, several slight disorders have been reported. Gov. Ammons was yesterday in a message to the Legislature, which will meet in special session next Monday. A number of legislators here attended informal conferences. Frank Ross and Andrew Galusha, two prominent men who disappeared last night while en route to visit their wives in Denver, had not been heard from early today. Fears for their safety were expressed by their friends.

Three men were burned to death early today in a fire that destroyed the saloon and boarding house at the Oak Creek mine in Rout County, according to reports received at the Governor's office.

The dead are: Robert Goggett, Jack Shaw and an unidentified man. The Governor had been unable to confirm a report that a woman and child, supposed to have been in the back of the boarding house, had lost their lives.

The Governor's informant said that "Walt" previously had received warning by telephone to close up or he would be burned out.

The Oak Creek miners did not go to work today, but those at the Morrison mine, a neighboring property, continued operations. Miners are guarding the property.

News of the dispatch of additional Federal troops into the strike zone was received with satisfaction by State officials.

Regular troops occupy the Trinidad, Fremont, Cedeno and Walsenburg districts. At the direction of Maj. Holbrook additional State troops were sent from Ludlow to Aguilera. The action of Secretary Garrison in granting the joint request of Maj. Holbrook and Gov. Ammons for Federal troops has served to allay uneasiness.

A second telegram signed by 11 of the coal operators, addressed to Martin Foster, chairman of the House Committee on Mines and Mining, in which they there is no change in the position taken by the operators at the beginning of the strike.

The companies reiterated their willingness to agree to a settlement of the strike upon the terms suggested by Gov. Ammons in a letter of Nov. 27, 1912.

I. W. W. WOMAN ORATOR HELD

NEW YORK, May 2.—Although John D. Rockefeller Jr. was at his father's estate at Pocantico Hills, "mourners" continued their marching today in front of the Standard Oil Building in New York City as a protest against the strike in the Colorado coal fields, in which the Rockefellers are interested.

Upton Sinclair was conspicuous among the marchers. He was released from prison only last evening after having paid a fine imposed for disorderly conduct.

A warrant was issued today for the arrest of Marie Ganza, an orator of the Industrial Workers of the World. It was based upon affidavits setting forth her repeated threats against Rockefeller. A squad of detectives went out to find the woman.

MAYOR AND HOUSE AGREE ON 13-CENT INCREASE IN TAXES

McCarthy Says Committee Will Recommend Higher Rate Provided by Council.

PLAYER URGED ECONOMY

Delegates May Kill Appropriations for Purchase of Coliseum and Payne Tract.

The House of Delegates and Mayor Kiel are committed to a 13.5 tax rate, passed by the Council Friday over the objection of Comptroller Player, who urged that the rate be cut 5 cents and that no attempt be made to acquire the Coliseum and the Payne tract adjoining Tower Grove Park, estimated to cost $150,000 each.

Chairman Randall of the Council Ways and Means Committee said Mayor Kiel gave assurance to the committee that he would sign the 13.5 tax rate measure if it is sent to the Mayor and Council. McCarthy of the House Ways and Means Committee said his committee will unanimously recommend the higher rate, which virtually assures its adoption by the lower branch.

The Council set aside the budget bill, which also was passed Friday, $150,000 for the purchase of the Coliseum and ground lease, and only $75,000 to apply on the purchase of the Payne tract, estimated to cost twice that amount. Delegates said the House probably would amend the budget bill by striking out the Coliseum and Payne tract appropriations, but would increase the tax rate 5 cents so that these properties might be acquired during the year.

Tax Increase Is 13 Cents. The Ways and Means Committee of both branches conferred with Comptroller Player just before the Council met, and Player said the members expressed an intention of keeping the tax rate $13.50 this year, which represents an increase of 8 cents above the last year's rate.

"It was assumed to hear the Council passed a 13.5 rate bill on the recommendation of the Ways and Means Committee," said Player, after the meeting. "We went over that question thoroughly and not a single member of the House or Council committee said he would recommend this budget."

The House of Delegates said he would recommend the 13.5 rate bill, which private managers have failed to make expenses, and it would be ridiculous for the city to assume a 30-year lease at a ground rental of $140,000 a year, being paying about $15,000 for the stock and bonds outstanding. I do not believe the city can legally operate the Coliseum because it cannot be maintained purely for public purposes.

"The Payne tract is not badly needed by the city, and we are burdened as it is with expenses that necessitate an eight cent increase in the tax rate this year."

House to Reduce Amount. The appropriation bill passed by the Council Friday carried $11,845,508.92, but the House expects to reduce this by striking out the $25,000 set aside by the Council for the Payne tract and the Coliseum. The 5-cent increase in the tax rate is estimated to yield about $275,000.

Collector Edmund Koelsch submitted his annual report Friday to the Mayor and Assembly, showing collections for the last fiscal year of $10,241,502.31 for municipal purposes. This is an increase of $245,000 over the collections of the previous year and establishes the record in the history of the city. Koelsch also reduced the cost of collection last year, and turned back surplus commissions of $31,000, as against $74,000 the year before. He collected $5,434,205 for the School Board and $1,330,495 for the State.

The harmony between the branches of the Assembly on the budget this year promises to enable city employees to get their April pay earlier than ever before. The House of Delegates met Saturday at 11 a. m. to give the appropriation bill a second reading, and will pass it at a special meeting Monday or at a regular meeting Tuesday. If nothing develops to impede its progress, the payrolls may be dispensed by May 15.

Cardinals' Park Safe

Council Kills Bill to Open Street Through Baseball Grounds. The bill introduced by Councilman Mahan to reopen Palm street and two alleys through National League Park was filed by the Council Friday on its second reading. It was not permitted to go to a committee for a hearing.

Councilman Herrmann stated he had ascertained residents of the neighborhood would not object to the park. Mahan, in introducing the bill, said the late Stanley Robinson assured him many years ago that he wished to use the park for only ten years, and that he would then consent to the reopening of the street and alleys. Mahan introduced in the House of Delegates the bill which closed Palm street for the park. He said he probably would ask the Board of Public Improvements to start condemnation suits to recover possession of the street and alleys.

Official Hymn for Today's Suffrage Demonstration

SUFFRAGISTS throughout the United States today are singing this song, which was adapted to the tune of "America" by the National Woman's Suffrage Association, to be made a feature of all of the National Suffrage day programs: My country 'tis for thee, To make your women free, This is our plea. High have our hopes been raised In these enlightened days That for her justice, praised Our land might be. My native country thee; Grant us equality! Then shall we see In this fair land of light Justice and truth and right Ruling, instead of might, Trust liberty. Our fathers' God, to thee, Author of liberty, To thee we sing: Long may our land be bright With freedom's holy light; Protect us by Thy might, Great God, our King.

"Old Kansas Guard" Leads Suffrage Parade in Kansas City. KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 2.—Kansas City's big demonstration for woman suffrage is taking place today. Its climax is expected to be reached when a parade of 100 motor cars, decorated in the colors of the Equal Suffrage Association, bearing attractive banners proclaiming "votes for women" and carrying adherents of the cause, will have traversed miles of streets in the downtown business district and the boulevard residence sections.

The parade was planned to start at 3 o'clock, preceded by a motor cycle escort of police and led by the "Old Kansas Guard," made up of women who were foremost in obtaining suffrage for Kansas. Its route was arranged to end at the home of Mrs. L. A. Goodman, 610 West Boulevard. There a monster mass meeting will be held today.

New York Mayor to Address Suffrage Meeting Tonight. NEW YORK, May 2.—With hundreds of workers in automobiles and on foot throughout the five boroughs of New York observed suffrage day in open-air meetings in place of the annual parade. From a general meeting in Washington Square speakers and prominent members of the seven great suffrage organizations in New York scattered to different sections of the city, where they held neighborhood meetings.

Women Cavalry to Be Distinguished Mark of Big Chicago Parade. CHICAGO, May 2.—Two solid miles of women marchers with bands to lead the way and a division of women cavalry bringing up the rear, were planned for the Chicago suffrage parade today, rain or shine. The organizers were determined that the part of this city in the nation-wide demonstration for woman suffrage should be adequate as an expression of enthusiasm of women in the largest city in which they have the franchise.

The parade is to be started at 8 a. m. to give workers a chance to participate. The route is to be only two miles, along a smooth breeze-swept boulevard. The only regalia desired is to be a suffrage cap, white with gold stars and "Illinois" in gold letters, and a flag.

Mrs. George Bernard Shaw Honored Guest of Boston Paraders. BOSTON, May 2.—Fair weather, following heavy rains, which had beaten down the dust, gave agreeable marching conditions for the woman suffrage parade here today. The 700 paraders included several hundred men. Among the visiting suffragists who accepted invitations to join in the march were Mrs. Harriet Shaw and Miss Lena Ashwell of England and Mrs. Morris Barth, representing the suffrage state of Colorado.

POLICE CHARGED WITH FAVORING U. R. IN ACCIDENTS

Equal Enforcement of Law and Judicial Determination of Responsibility Asked.

FEW ARRESTS ALLEGED

Civic League Complains Motor-men Escape Prosecution, Other Drivers Do Not.

Charges that the police department has shown favoritism to United Railways by refusing to arrest and prosecute motormen guilty of criminal carelessness in street car accidents, while arresting the drivers of all other classes of vehicles on the slightest provocation, were made to the Board of Police Commissioners Saturday by the Streets Committee of the Civic League. The Police Board itself is charged, with being responsible for this condition of affairs.

The complaint was made by Lewis S. Hazlam, Robert H. Keiser and George C. Mackey, members of the streets committee. It was pointed out to the board that while one-half of all the accidents in St. Louis are caused by street cars, it is seldom that any motorman is arrested and prosecuted.

The committee declares that the law makes no distinction whatever between the motorman of a street car and the driver of any other vehicle. It is charged that the Police Department has arbitrarily interpreted the law so that it discriminates favorably to the street railway employees and unfavorably to others.

Complaint to Board. In the written complaint to the Police Commissioners, the committee said: "There seems to be an erroneous impression among certain police officials that motormen and street car companies are not subject to the traffic laws, and for the judicial determination of responsibility in cases of all accidents. It is unjust and dangerous to permit a policeman to decide whether or not there is criminal responsibility in the case of a given accident."

For Three Years. Itched and Burned Intensely. Spread Across Forehead. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Ended Trouble.

1107 N. Winchester Ave., Chicago, Ill.—"I was seriously affected with poisonous itchy red pimples in the middle of my cheeks for three or more years, and I could never get rid of them. At times it seemed as though they had vanished, but later would become large with yellow pus in them. They itched and burned intensely so that I was tempted to scratch and irritate them. Later they came out in a great number and spread over the entire face. The pimples caused much trouble. On reading a few of the wonderful cures of Cuticura Soap and Ointment I thought I had better try them. In the evening before retiring and also in the morning when I arose I thoroughly washed my face with hot water and Cuticura Soap and after drying I applied the Cuticura Ointment. I only used two cakes of Cuticura Soap and half a box of Cuticura Ointment and within six months my trouble was completely ended." (Signed) Miss Clara E. Sullivan, Oct. 3, 1913.

St. Louis Suffers From Kidney Troubles Often Becomes Very Irritable.

Cross, irritable people—the sort who fuss and mope and worry over trifles—are no. always robust. Many of the annoyances they give to others. Frequently these traits are but the effects of kidney poisons on brain and nerves. Urine acid that escapes the kidneys, irritates nerve centers and vital organs—is likely to cause backache, rheumatism and neuralgia pains—keep your languid, listless out, or lead to Bright's disease, gravel or dropsy. ## 500 AMERICANS LIKELY TO STAY IN MEXICO CITY

More Than 400 Who Departed
by Way of Puerto, Mexico,
Now on Ship for Galveston.

UNMOLESTED ON THE WAY

Belief Among Those Who Returned Is That Huerta Will Resign or Be Forced Out.

By ROBERT H. MURRAY,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World at Vera Cruz.

VERA CRUZ, May 2.—Aboard the transport Hancock, the refugees who got away from Mexico City Tuesday night by a special train routed to Puerto Mexico, are being taken today and today are aboard the liner Monterey, which will carry them to Galveston.

In the company was William Belmont Parker of Westfield, N. J., literary adviser of the New York World. Parker of Parker & Taylor Co. I talked with him at length after I had boarded the Hancock with Commander Charles F.
Hughes, chief of staff of the Atlantic fleet.

"I should say that there are about 500 Americans still remaining in Mexico City," Parker said. "Most of them, I understand, intend to remain there voluntarily, not believing that they will run the risk of any abnormal danger under present circumstances.

"Disturbed by Rumors.
"When we left the city Tuesday night conditions were, outwardly, almost normal, so far as the general state of the city and people was concerned. There was, naturally, unrest in the atmosphere. This unrest was not so much among Americans and other foreigners as among the Mexicans themselves, and was due to the prevalence of all sorts of rumors. The rumors were to the effect that Huerta was about to resign, or that he would be forced to do so by the public sentiment.
The situation is liable, I should say,
to tip any way at almost any moment.

"There seems to be a growing tendency to impose upon Huerta the blame for the occupation of Vera Cruz and for the entire trouble with the United States. If the people once get it into their heads that they must have a scapegoat, they will probably make one out of Huerta.

"Aside from the natural discomforts of such a long journey, most of it through the tropics, we had nothing to complain of either in the accommodations provided us or in the treatment received from the Mexicans all the way from Mexico City to Puerto Mexico. There were no demonstrations.
The people we saw at the stations were friendly enough.

"Vera Out Demonstrating.
For the present the anti-American sentiment and a desire to wreck things in reprisals upon Americans for the Vera Cruz occupation seems to have disappeared. People in Mexico City tried themselves out demonstrating, yelling, singing and marching.

"Had I any occasion to remain in the

SEVERE BRONCHIAL COUGH

Doctors Feared Lung Trouble,
Restored to Health by Vinol.

The medical profession does not believe that lung troubles are inherited, but a person may inherit a weakness or tendency to them.

Mrs. Kate Heckman, Springfield, Ohio, says: "A few years ago I was in a very bad run-down condition, and the physician told me I had consumption. I tried another physician, and he told me I had ulcers on my right lung. I quit the physicians and started on 'Vinol.' Today I am perfectly healthy, and that is why I recommend 'Vinol.'

Vinol soothes and heals the inflamed surfaces and allays the cough. Vinol creates an appetite, strengthens the digestive organs and gives the patient strength to throw off incipient pulmonary diseases.

Try a bottle of Vinol with the understanding that your money will be returned if it does not help you.

Natives Would Bar Bull Fighting in Vera Cruz

VERA CRUZ, May 2.—Bull fighting will be barred in Vera Cruz if the suggestion of the native City Council is approved by Civil Governor Kerr.

It is not the intention of the civil government to interfere with the customs of the people any more than is necessary, and when the Aldermen in session last night proposed depriving their own people of their most popular form of sport there was much surprise in the Governor's office.

That there will be little if any opposition to the Aldermen's suggestion is practically certain. Bull fighting is not indulged in so much in this State as in most of the others, and for many years it was prohibited. It was not until Francisco Madero's rule that permission to revive it was given.

capital probably I should have done so, although in view of the uncertainty and delicate nature of our relations with the republic the safest and natural plan is for all Americans to take no chances, but get out as soon as possible. I am quite sure no American was killed or even injured during the demonstrations in the capital. The chief apprehension there among Americans seemed to be that those of our countrymen in isolated places, not so much those in cities and large towns, might not escape so easily, not because of what the people might do, but from attacks by bandits, undeterred by the soldiers of civil authorities whose functions seem to be almost paralyzed throughout the republic.

"The whole Huerta Government seems to be rapidly crumbling. It cannot, it seems to me, hold together much longer.
Mexicans, generally, think that our coming into Vera Cruz means war, but I should say that the spirit and disposition of national resistance lacks cohesion in the direction of any genuine patriotic inspiration."

All Left Capital's Headly.
Parker's story is substantially the same told by others of the 400 refugees brought here from Puerto Mexico by the Hancock. Physically they are in fine condition, although some of them left the capital so hurriedly they had no time to clean their hands and luggage.
Almost all are well supplied with money.
The guard of Mexican soldiers furnished by Gen. Huerta complained they had not been paid for six days and were without funds to purchase food.

A contribution was taken up among the refugees and given to the soldiers.
Soldiers at Puerto Mexico told the refugees they had orders if the Hancock entered the harbor with her guns trained on land they were to open fire. Their guns were in this usual position pointing shoreward all the time the Hancock was in the harbor, but no hostile demonstration was offered by the Mexican garison.

CHARGE O'SHAUGHNESSY STARTS FOR GALVESTON

Will Go to Washington for Consultation With President;
May Be Made a Minister.

VERA CRUZ, May 2.—Nelson O'Shaughnessy, who was Charge d'Affaires of the American Embassy at Mexico City, departed for Galveston Friday in the tender Yankton. He was accompanied by Mrs. O'Shaughnessy, Charles B. Parker, a clerk in the embassy, and Mrs. Parker.

O'Shaughnessy said he was returning to Washington in obedience to orders of Secretary Bryan, saying President Wilson wished him to proceed to the capital immediately for a consultation.
Probably he will not return to Mexico.
In the event of the difference between the two governments being straightened out an Ambassador unquestionably would be named.

O'Shaughnessy's diplomatic future is uncertain. As a reward for his work in Mexico it may be reasonably expected some important diplomatic post will be assigned him, probably a ministership.
His friends understand that he is inclined to retire to enter business, but he has not definitely decided.

FORMER PEORIA SCHOOL HEAD IS SENTENCED

Dougherty, Twice Convicted of Forgery May Be Freed Pending Appeal.

PEORIA, Ill., May 2.—Newton C.
Dougherty, former bank president and Superintendent of Peoria Schools, who served a term in Joliet penitentiary for the alleged theft of approximately $200, 000 in school funds, is today a prisoner in the "bull pen" at the county jail.

Judge T. N. Green, in the Principal Court, yesterday denied Dougherty's motion for a new trial and sentenced him to serve from one to fourteen years in the penitentiary at Joliet.

Dougherty was released from Joliet in 1911, after serving five years on forgery charges. Immediately after his release he attempted to regain property turned over to the Peoria School Board to cover part of his delinquency. The State's Attorney in Peoria County again required his indictment on charges of forgery not included in the indictments on which he was found guilty in 1905, and Dougherty was again found guilty

BOTH VERA CRUZ AND TAMPICO ARE SHORT OF FOOD

Governor's Threat to Execute Anyone Who Supplies Former City, Cuts Off Vegetables.

By Associated Press.

VERA CRUZ, Mexico, May 2.—The fall of Tampico into rebel hands, which just now is considered a somewhat remote possibility, owing to the strength of the Federal force there, might help the food situation there and in Vera Cruz, where it is becoming more and more serious. In that event it is presumed the trade between Vera Cruz and Tampico would be resumed, and that the territory about Tampico now in rebel hands, would supply the market here to some extent.

Just now the only supplies reaching Vera Cruz are coming from the small ranches near enough to the city for owners to feel assured of American protection. Scores of natives carrying eggs and milk arrive daily, but this supply is absorbed almost without effect on the demand. The hotels are unable to obtain fruit and butter.

Threats to Carriers of Supplies.
If the order of the Mexican Government of the State of Vera Cruz threatening execution of any one bringing food to the city is effective, even this small supply will be cut off, and the population, both native and foreign, will be forced to depend upon goods shipped from the United States and elsewhere.
Many ranchers from the Northern and Southern truck gardens a few miles out, called at Gov. Kerr's office today and wished to know if they would be protected if they brought in supplies.
The order not to extend the American lines prevents giving the protection desired and the only ranches which the authorities can count upon are those within the narrow boundaries of the outposts, or within range of the picket's rifles.

The money situation is also peculiar.
The banks have been virtually at a standstill for all except small exchange business because of the lack of stamps required by the Mexican laws now in force. Nearly 600,000 pesos of captured stamps were placed in circulation today, to relieve the situation.

It is becoming almost impossible to find Mexican change, and every $5 bill presented to pay for a small purchase causes a disturbance, for there is virtually no Mexican silver and the supply of small bills is exhausted.

Business on Double Standard.
Some merchants are doing business on a double standard. Goods bought in the United States or abroad are sold only on a gold basis, while goods bought in Mexico City are sold for Mexican money.
But little American change is available and small business is hampered.
The city is becoming flooded with Mexican bills of large denominations through the efforts of refugees to obtain American money for Mexican money brought from the interior.

"In some instances they have paid as high as 4 to 1, while some business houses are demanding 2 to 1, the result being unreliable exchange quotations.

stops skin troubles

No matter how long you have been tortured and disfigured by itching, burning, raw or scaly skin humors, just put a little of that soothing, antiseptic Resinol Ointment on the sores and the suffering stops right there!
Healing begins that very minute, and your skin gets well so quickly you feel ashamed of the money you threw away on useless, tedious treatments.

Resinol is not an experiment. It is a doctor's prescription which was so unusually successful for skin troubles that it has been used by other physicians all over the country for the past eighteen years.

Cured Awful Itching in One Night

New York.—"The skin on my hand got red and rough.
It itched and I began to scratch it. It itched so that sometimes I could not sleep all night. I was suffering very much. I used ———— and ————, but they did not seem to help me. This went on for six or seven months.
Then I tried Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap. I used them one night. In the morning, to my surprise, my hand was all well and the trouble has never returned. This is the absolute truth." (Signed) Miss Celia Kleinman, 61 Columbia St., April 26, 1913.

Wherever drugs are sold you can get Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap. For trial size, free, write to

REVIEWS of NEW BOOKS

"FOOL OF APRIL."

OUR author herein well engages the reader with a droll idea. It covers some four hundred pages.

And look as barren as Judea. But like that land of rolling sand. One finds with reading it a minute. That there are springs and other things. Which one had not suspected in it.

The author's sprightly disquisitions have irrigated what was barren. And thus, despite one's grave suspicions. It blooms like the rose of Sharon. Given value of wit have rendered it. A garden sweet in which to tarry. And having passed good gates at last. We wish to reassure the wary.

There are respects in which this story compares with any for invention; but it may not touch the heights of glory. But it has some moments we could mention. We wander down through London town. And in the town of life and laughter. Acquire a mood that should intrude. On all unhappiness hereafter.

"Fool of April," by Justin Huntley McCarthy. (John Lane.)

DELIGHTFUL REMINISCENCES. It is not given to many men to have such clear memories of their youth as George Haven Putnam, publisher, and the ability is given to fewer men to tell about them as George Haven Putnam tells about them in "Memories of My Youth." More is required of one who would tell his memories to others than is required for the telling of other sorts of things. Proportions are not so easily preserved. It is difficult for a person, even a modest person, to keep from drawing his own figure large as he relates the things that happened when he was young.

There is none of this in the recollections which Putnam has set down of the period from 1844 to 1860, from his birth to the attainment, through war's travail, of his citizenship. Although quite half of the 44-page volume has to do with the Civil War period, in which Putnam played a significant and at times dramatic and heroic part, it remains for another chronicler to set down in dramatic and heroic phrases the part that he played. The autobiographer has been content to write with delightful simplicity and sincerity of great events in which he was privileged to have a part.

The earlier chapters, having much to do with intimate personal and family matters, do not take as strong hold on the reader's interest as those which deal with the drama of war, but even these, in their pleasant discursiveness, afford satisfying glimpses of social life and student days during the decade preceding the war, while the author, after evening attainment, through war's travail, of his citizenship. Although quite half of the 44-page volume has to do with the Civil War period, in which Putnam played a significant and at times dramatic and heroic part, it remains for another chronicler to set down in dramatic and heroic phrases the part that he played. The autobiographer has been content to write with delightful simplicity and sincerity of great events in which he was privileged to have a part.

Running through the narrative, brightening all the pages, is a gentle and tender humor, so unobtrusive, so natural and so genial that one knows it found its own way in because it is the very spirit of the narrator and could not be kept out.

Young Putnam was a student, abroad, before and during the early part of the war. He gives an unvarnished recital of student life and adventures and reveals clearly the drift of opinion in England and on the Continent with reference to the conflict between the states. From the time that the young student, no longer to be denied a part in the great struggle, sailed home and entered upon service which was to continue the better part of three years, his experience can be summed from camp diversion to battle and wounds and swamp fevers and prison, and he has told about them in a narrative style so unassuming and adequate that every page has its wealth of interest. There is a blending of the important and the unimportant, events of national significance and of merely personal import; that imparts to the reader a comfortable assurance that here is a faithful chronicle, worthy of all acceptance. It is the faithfulness of the narrative that makes it singularly real to the reader, who is as one who listens to the full, fresh and vigorous story of the young soldier just back from the war rather than as one who reads what the old soldier has written after half a century's lapse.

The literary quality is of the same high grade as has been exhibited by the author in the 15 other notable books that he has contributed to the enrichment of American letters, and it is to be hoped that the time and strength needed for the purpose of continuing the narrative to cover the record of the succeeding half century, as announced by him, will be his. (G. P. Putnam's Sons.)

A FOOL AND HIS MONEY.

"KEEPING UP APPEARANCE." is a thing that cannot be done in New York on $500 a year, which was the amount on which James J. James Agnew attempted it, as Maximilian Porter tells about it entertainingly in his book of the above title. James had been earning $5 a week as a coal firm clerk in an Ohio city and he and James had been getting along comfortably on it, but James was ashamed of his job, so he threw it up and obtained another, through a college mate's favor, at $500 a year in Wall street.

James and James figured out that it would cost as much to live in New York and so much could be exact. But that was before they discovered that they had to keep up, or thought they had to keep up, appearances. In keeping up appearances they used up all the $500 and a lot besides and the end of the year found them miles in debt. Just about then James lost his $500 job, which was all things considered, about the best thing that ever happened to James. The rest of the story is about James and James continuing themselves and getting back to a human scale of living where they do not have to keep up appearances. It is a brightly told story and there is a lesson in it for those who may be tempted to keep up appearances. (Appleton.)

"A Lady and Her Husband."

By Amber Reeves. (G. P. Putnam's Sons.)

JOSEPH PULLITZER. "Joseph PULLITZER" presents but one aspect of a distinguished American whose complete portrait will not have been drawn until the full story of his life, his aspirations, his endeavor and his achievement shall have been told.

"The present volume," says Mr. Ireland himself in the preface to his book, "is in no sense a biography of the extraordinary man. It is merely an accurate and somewhat detailed account of my experience as a subordinate member of the personal staff which was always in attendance upon him. Only one side of a singularly rich and complex nature is disclosed in these pages—the side which he turned to a new secretary. It is to be hoped that some one who knew him intimately and for a long time will supplement this record by a work which will do justice to the varied and remarkable qualities of one of the most vigorous, picturesque and original personalities that ever played a part in the interesting drama of American public life."

Nevertheless, there is much of vital character-significance in Mr. Ireland's book. The portrait which he draws is not only a portrait of Joseph Pulitzer indomitable and victoriously fighting against the handicap of blindness and other physical disabilities under which he prosecuted his great labors in the public service during the last 25 years of his life. It is not a portrait that calls for pity—the grim courage and inflexible resolution of Joseph Pulitzer forbid this. The stamp of consecration to one's appointed task is set large upon it. It is of the sincerest ethical value in its teaching of unyielding willpower and an all-conquering determination devoted to the manifold doing of a man's work. Therefore, most of all, it is an inspiring and stimulating portrait.

Happily, too, while Mr. Ireland tells us minutely of the special and amazingly comprehensive organization of aid through whose service Joseph Pulitzer remained so potent a dominant in his direction of the New York World and the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, and maintained so searching a keen outlook on current events, he presents, as well, many extremely human and illuminative glimpses on the personage of whom his book treats in its more or less intimate revelation of daily life. We learn that Joseph Pulitzer—or "J. P." as he was so long known to those associated with his newspaper properties or in his personal service—loved good books, good plays and good music, the latter, perhaps, most of all. We discover that he possessed a grateful relish of humor. We encounter frequently the truth that he was a very simple man who had the courage to fight for his convictions. We see that he was prone, as are all strong personalities, to the shaping and developing of character in those under his influence, and that, in this, he was even more rigorous in his demands upon his own than upon others. In one amusing little incident, aboard an Atlantic liner, homeward bound, there is revealed a whimsical forbearance toward a noisily crying baby and a chucklingly tender solicitude for its mother's peace of mind which is as revealing as it is diverting in its human comedy. These and other casual glimpses of Joseph Pulitzer, obtained in the routine of life on his yacht Liberty, or at his Cap Martin villa on the Mediterranean, and, finally, at his Harbord estate in this country, are as revealing as they are significant.

More largely significant, however, and sounding the very keynote of the man's character and chosen mission, is his passionate subscription to his creed of Public Service as the one great and imperative duty, the faithful performance of which alone makes a newspaper worthy to live and prosper. This is the now world-famous "Pulitzer Idea," with which Joseph Pulitzer revolutionized newspaper ideals in this country and engraved upon the universal mind a rightful conception of the one supreme obligation of journalism. In a conversation with Mr. Ireland, duly set forth in the latter's book, Joseph Pulitzer gave a convincing utterance of this personal conviction, to which he remained steadfast all his life long.

"A newspaper," he said, "should be scrupulously accurate; it should be clean, it should avoid everything malicious or suggestive, everything that could offend good taste or lower the moral tone of its readers; but within these limits it is the duty of a newspaper to print the news. When I speak of good taste and of good moral tone I do not mean the kind of good taste which is offended by every reference to the unpleasant things of life; I do not mean the kind of morality which refuses to recognize the existence of immorality—that type of moral hypocrisy has done more to check the moral progress of humanity than all the immoral people put together. What I mean is the kind of good taste which demands that frankness should be linked with decency, the kind of moral tone which is braced and not relaxed when it is brought face to face with vice."

"We are a democracy, and there is only one way to get a democracy on its feet in the matter of its individual, its social, its municipal, its State, its national conduct, and that is by keeping the public informed about what is going on. There is not a crime, there is not a dodge, there is not a trick, there is not a swindle, there is not a vice, which does not live by secrecy. Get these things out in the open, describe them, attack them, ridicule them in the press, and sooner or later public opinion will sweep them away. Publicity may not be the only thing that is needed, but it is the one thing without which all other agencies will fail."

There we have the foundation stone upon which all the structure of Joseph Pulitzer's life as a great newspaper man was based. Publicity—publicity—publicity—and always for the public good—this was the righting of wrong, which first must needs be exposed for the arousing of a just popular indignation, before it can be righted. And, as is inevitable, this utterance here quoted is the most vital and illuminative in Mr. Ireland's book. It reveals Joseph Pulitzer as he has been most indelibly imprinted on the history of his time. Mr. Ireland's reminiscences are dedicated, by permission to Mrs. Joseph Pulitzer, (Mitchell Kennedy.)

AN OVERDRAUGHT PREACHMENT. OSMO HAMILTON'S "The Blindness of Virtue" might be called a novel-drama-novel. It was written as a novel, then dramatized, then re-novelized. With all this revision the story contains palpable repetitions, and an odd blunder. The mother, Helen, is made to say that her mother never gave her any of the kind of instruction, the need for which is the theme of the book. As an earlier chapter states that her mother died when she was born, the argument which Helen draws from this neglect of hers, loses some of its force.

To emphasize a salutary truth—that children should receive certain instruction from their parents before it is too late for such instruction to be of benefit—the author tells an overdramatic story having its climax in an impossible situation. The best thing in the book is the character of the father, a clergyman of the Church of England. (Doran.)

NOTABLE ST. LOUIS WOMEN. "NOTABLE Women of St. Louis" is the title of a volume of interesting biographical sketches written by Mrs. Charles P. Johnson of this city, who dedicates her work to her husband, a well-known St. Louis attorney and former Lieutenant-Governor of Missouri.

In this valuable contribution to American biographical literature, Mrs. Johnson tells in an engaging manner the life stories of some 65 distinguished women of this city, not a few of whom have won national fame in their chosen field of work. Her choice of subjects was made free of any motives of self-interest and the primary purpose of the book's writing was to furnish a competent record of feminine achievement that might properly find place in public libraries for future reference.

This task has been well performed, and Mrs. Johnson may feel a just pride in the importance of her completed endeavor. Among the St. Louis women who appear in her book are: Miss Zoe Atkins, Dr. Amabel Anderson, Mrs. F. W. Baumhoff, Miss Thelma Bernays, Dr. Frances Lewis Bishop, Mrs. Elsie J. Blattner, Mrs. Anita Calvert Bourgeois, Mrs. Lulu Kunkel-Burg, Mrs. Samuel R. Burgess, Mrs. Anna Sneed Cairns, Mrs. Charles Cummings Collins, Miss Nancy Coonman, Mrs. Mary C. GASOLINE ENGINE FACTS. THERE is one small mechanical device which in the past decade has revolutionized the mode of travel, resulted in the conquest of the air by man, and has become a new and powerful factor in the mills, factories and fields of the country. That is the gas or gasoline engine. It has made possible the highly developed automobile of today, the aeroplane in which man travels through the air with the grace and swiftness of a bird, and has furnished a new and cheap power for the operation of all kinds of machinery. The story of this wonderworker is told in nontechnical language by A. Hyatt Verrill under the title, "Harper's Gasoline Engine Book." Chapters are devoted to all classes and types of gasoline engines. The chapter on the automobile seems sure to become popular among motor car owners, for it not only describes the different types of engines, but gives minute directions for discovering all the ills to which this new mechanical device is heir. The book contains numerous illustrations, making the text easily understood. (Harper & Brothers.)

THEY FOUND A FRIEND. A VERY natural story is "In Quest of Adventure," by Mary E. Manoir. Two young brothers wanted to investigate the woods that lay beyond their country home place. So they chose a day when their parents were gone, and started early in the morning, laden with equipment, to "hunt."

Indiana. Of course, they did not find any Indians, but they made the acquaintance of one of their neighbors, and this acquaintance developed into a friendship that meant much for them later. (Benniger.)

By MARGARET BLAKE

Author of "THE GREATER JOY," "THE VOICE OF THE HEART,"

How the hero, by virtue of the Infallible System of Scientific Egoism for achieving success, evolved by himself, speedily climbs to the top of his profession in New York; how he saves the woman he loves from a fate worse than death, and then, learning that discards the system that made his success, to save his honor, forms a vividly realistic and powerful story.

Love without Faith is Not Love

BURNS ATTACKED BY MOB FOR SAYING FRANK IS INNOCENT

Detective Struck in Face and Threatened When He Is Investigating Factory Murder.

By Associated Press. ATLANTA, Ga., May 2.—William J. Burns, the detective, was the center of an angry demonstration when he came here presumably in connection with an investigation of the case of Leo M. Frank, the Atlanta factory superintendent under sentence of death for the murder of 14-year-old Mary Phagan.

One man in a crowd that surrounded Burns struck the detective in the face. Others threatened the detective with violence if he made any move to resist the man. The detective escaped to a hotel, while Daniel Lehone, a detective who accompanied him here, summoned deputy sheriffs. No arrests were made.

This was the home of the slain factory girl and many of her relatives still live here.

State Alleges Some Affidavits in Frank Case Are Forgeries.

ATLANTA, Ga., May 2.—Attacks by state attorneys on methods employed by the defense in obtaining evidence for their plea marked the resumption of hearings on the extraordinary motion for a new trial for Leo M. Frank, under death sentence for the murder of 14-year-old Mary Phagan.

Private detectives and others were charged with using misrepresentation and other improper influences in obtaining affidavits. Hugh M. Dorsey, Solicitor-General, asserted that some of the affidavits were forgeries.

How False "S O S" May Have Been Picked Up

SAN FRANCISCO, May 2.—A wireless operator heard the steamship Persia in communicating with her sister ship, the Siberia, sign her code signal "M B S" after giving her latitude and longitude and misread it into "S O S," the signal for assistance, as coming from the Siberia, was explained today by those familiar with the international code, which is used for wireless work.

The symbols for the two sets of letters are as follows:

A steamer in giving her longitude and latitude sends her own code name thereafter twice. It is considered more than probable that on the first sending some operator failed to receive the "M" and "B," and caught only the "S." Naturally alert at the first letter of the distress signal, he caught the two dashes of the "M" as the Persia started sending her code name the second time and overlooked the slight pause between these two dashes and first dash of "S," running them three together thus he had:

S O S

The operator having the location of the vessel and what he thought was "S O S," relayed the call. The Persia having given her location and name, proceeded without more ado.

STEAMER SIBERIA SAFE; REPORT OF DANGER BASELESS

Error in Reading Wireless Believed to Have Caused Fears for Vessel, Now at Manila.

By Associated Press. TOKIO, May 2.—Great relief is felt here at the news from Manila that the Pacific mail steamer Siberia, yesterday reported by wireless to have been in great peril off the coast of Formosa, is safe at Manila.

The vessel had a passenger list of 11 persons in the first cabin, about 50 in the second cabin and about 400 in the steerage. Among those on board were Mrs. Francis Burton Harrison, wife of the Governor-General of the Philippines, and Mrs. John B. Pennington, wife of the newly-appointed Consul to Manila.

Inquiry is to be made. Japanese authorities will investigate how the reports of yesterday were disseminated. Japan has recalled the warships she dispatched yesterday to the aid of the liner supposed to be in distress.

A dispatch from Manila received last night said the Siberia steamed into port after an uneventful voyage from Nagasaki, which port she left April 28. Capt. Zeeder of the Siberia said he believed the reports that his vessel was in distress arose over confusion in the call letters of the steamer Persia, with which vessel he had been in communication. These letters are "M B S," and they doubtless were mistaken for "S O S," the marine wireless appeal for aid.

The wireless operator on board the Siberia added that the atmospheric conditions had been bad, making difficult the sending of wireless messages.

The first erroneous reading of the wireless calls from the Persia evidently were made at the Oozakani wireless station in Japan. They were interpreted as setting forth that the steamer had met with an accident and was in distress. Other wireless reports were responsible for the belief that she was sinking.

Cruisers Sent to Search. On receiving the news, the Japanese Government dispatched cruisers and merchant ships from Formosa to where the Siberia was supposed to be; a British warship steamed at full speed to her assistance and the American naval authorities at Manila made hurried preparations to send help.

The belief that the Siberia was in trouble was entirely dispelled last night with the receipt of dispatches from Manila saying that she was safe in that port.

CALL FOR CHURCH PROTEST IN FAKE FUNERALS CHARGE

B'Nai Amoona Congregation Asked to Gather Sunday to Consider Cemetery Suit.

Directors of the Scherith Israel Cemetery Association have called an indignation meeting of the B'Nai Amoona Congregation for Sunday at 3 p. m., when they will express their feelings over the $30,000 damage suit filed against the association Friday by Julian Laughlin, an attorney, who alleges they have held fake funerals and buried earth-filled coffins to escape taxation on 14 acres held in the association's name directly opposite his beautiful 26-acre country home on the North and South roads, a half mile north of Clayton.

This move was decided upon at a meeting late Friday afternoon at 908 North Eighth street, superintendent, and H. Maliner, sexton of the cemetery.

These, excepting Maliner, are made personal defendants in the suit, together with Harry Siegfried of 1015 Lucas avenue, president of the congregation; P. H. Miller, H. Kessler, M. M. Ollan, A. J. Margolis, Sol Maliner and Jake Stupp, named as controllers of the association. The B'Nai Amoona church is at Garrison and Lucas avenues.

Laughlin also asks a perpetual injunction, restraining them from burying persons in the tract. He alleges the cemetery is damaging property values in the vicinity about 50 per cent.

The four cemetery directors vigorously denied to a Post-Dispatch reporter the allegations of the suit, declaring Laughlin had a grudge against them because he feared the cemetery might lessen the value of his property.

Bureau's Statement. "You may say for me and others here that the allegation made by Laughlin about the burial of earth-filled coffins to escape taxation is a contemptible lie," asserted Bureau of Cemetery directors.

Every site was bought by us 40 years ago. We purchased the new tract of 14 acres nine years ago, when it was apparent the old site, little larger than an acre, would be inadequate. That was before Laughlin purchased his homestead and built his residence.

"Later we went to a real estate man in Clayton to borrow money for improving the new tract, in which we had buried three persons. The Assessor's records showed we owed six years' taxes and we could get no money for improvements until this was cleared. The matter went to court and in April, 1913, the County Court canceled the taxes, holding the tract was for a cemetery."

Will Contest the Suit. "Then Richard Elbing, County Surveyor, drew up a diagram of grading and improvements for us, and with the permission of the Health Department the three coffins were transferred to the old cemetery to permit of excavations. Maliner and his grave diggers, J. A. Murphy, an Irishman, and his son, did the work. All three saw the bodies transferred."

"The improvements were carried out at a cost of $700, since which one burial has taken place. The records of the association and the health office will prove this."

Bureau, as spokesman for the others, declared Laughlin had no ground for his allegations and that the matter would be vigorously contested. He said a counterclaim might be filed. The defendants' counsel, he said, had not been chosen, but probably would be State Senator Gardner of Clayton.

EXPERTS HOPE TO FIND LIVING MEN IN WRECKED MINE

Widows and Mothers of Victims Crowd Around Shaft as Bodies Are Taken Out.

ECCLES, W. Va., May 2.—Eighteen bodies had been recovered from the wrecked galleries of Mine No. 5 of the New River Colliers Co. when fresh rescue crews descended the shaft at dawn. Seventeen others had been located and indications were they would be brought to the surface before nightfall.

Director Holmes of the Bureau of Mines has his forces so well organized that as soon as one crew of helmet men reaches the surface another is ready to take its place. Much of the mine has been explored, but there still remain some entries and rooms to which the entrance has not been forced. Until these have been reached the Government men refuse to believe that all the miners were killed. Air is now being forced into the mine, the pumps are kept working day and night, and the next day or two should see the work of recovering bodies almost ended.

Many wives, mothers and sisters still crowded about the mine entrance hoping that the stories of the Cherry, Ill., and the Monongahela, Pa., mine disasters will not be repeated and that some of the miners may be rescued alive.

Under the direction of Charles P. Neill and Robert Strauss, the work of preparing relief for the widowed and fatherless is going on rapidly. Statistics compiled show there are 75 widows as a result of disaster. Three of the widows are under 17 and one of them is a bride of two months. One hundred and fifty-two children have been left fatherless. Mrs. Mary Akers, a widow, lost her twin sons, who were her only support.

Gov. Henry D. Hatfield and other officials who went to the foot of the shaft late yesterday to observe conditions, expressed themselves as satisfied with the rescuing work. Members of Government rescue crews who have penetrated many of the entries back in the mine found conditions bad. Dangerous explosive gases were discovered and falls of slate and rock hindered their progress. Only a few bodies were seen and it is believed most of the dead will be found in the mine rooms.

Browns Leading American League in Team Hitting

Rickey's Men Also Are Well Up in Base Running and First in Strike-Outs.

Prepare for a shock! The Browns are leading the American League in hitting. Yes, sir, Branch Rickey's sensitive boys are up there at the very top with a grand average of .285, while Cleveland trails with .262.

The great willow work of Gus Williams, who is doing .425, and Clarence Walker, who owns a notch of .415, mention Jack Leary's total of .311 makes this possible. By stealing 19 bases the Browns also rank well among the pilferers, only two teams, Detroit and Philadelphia, having stolen more bases. Here are the figures:

Mr. Jarr Meets Fritz's Sister—but, Wait!

It is not alone in moving pictures and melodramas that important letters and telegrams are dropped to be picked up by the hero or villain as the case may be.

It was neither hero nor villain who picked up the telegram that fell to the floor of the parlor car while Mr. Jarr was frisking through his pockets to find a dime to give to the porter of the Pullman.

The finder of the dropped telegram was none other than the militant feminist who had insisted on getting into the upper berth the night before.

The lady warrior bided her time. Mr. Jarr, because he had tried to do her a favor. Besides, she had taken up an advanced course of militant feminism, the first principle of which is to believe that every woman please and only man is vile.

Hence when she picked up and read the telegram regarding the shipping clerk's sister she saw it all! She saw Mr. Jarr as a human vulture. He wasn't anything of the sort—he was just a commonplace married man trying to keep his courage up and his expense account down and to be back from a business trip in time to attend a breakfast dinner that at times he felt was being given in his honor.

The militant feminist carried a pair of handcuffs in her hand satchel. She always carried them in anticipation of meeting a human vulture while he was vulturing. In this case she intended to first stun the human vulture by hitting him over the head with the hand satchel containing the handcuffs and other hardware, and then, while the human vulture was thus, open the handcuffs, take out the handcuffs, put them on the human vulture and drag him off to the lecture platform and exhibit him as a horrible example.

The porter saw the militant feminist pick up the telegram, and he would have warned Mr. Jarr, but not for 10 cents. For a quarter, yes; 10 cents, no. A ten-cent tip is accepted in silence and without insulting the donor.

As the train approached Omaha, Mr. Jarr was nervous, and the militant feminist was eager and determined regarding him with watchful waiting.

Mr. Jarr was debating whether she should hit Mr. Jarr over the head and handcuff him or be met his victim. But Mr. Jarr had received another telegram, and he had no chance of reading it over his shoulder, as yet. For to the militant feminist Mr. Jarr was that long-sought-for but seldom found miscreant, a real live agent of the human vulture trust. The telegram from his boss in the wholesale woolen trade and the direction regarding Fritz the shipping clerk's young sister, she regarded as a cipher message from the New York head of the human vulture traffic.

This removed all doubt in her mind that Mr. Jarr was a human vulture.

Who else were polite to females traveling alone but human vultures? Who else were sent to the Middle West from human vulture headquarters to entrap young girls except human vultures?

Her patience and persistence were both rewarded. As the train drew into Omaha Mr. Jarr got out the last telegram he had received. It read: "You will know my sister because she looks like me," and it was signed "Fritz."

There WAS a girl in blue gazing at the train expectantly. She DID look like Fritz, the shipping clerk, only more so! For her weight, as Mr. Jarr estimated it, was about four hundred pounds! Mr. Jarr did not know, although he might have suspected it, that the theatrical career Fritz's sister looked forward to was with a circus Congress of Curiousities, or at something of the sort, now that the movies have put the dime museums out of business.

Hits From Sharp Wits

A man cannot always be judged by the age of his jokes.

What passes for courage is often the dread of betraying fear.

An hour a day is enough time to give up to pessimistic thoughts.

The uglier the baby the more it is said to look like its father.

Forgiving and forgetting rarely ever go hand in hand.—Macon Telegraph.

Money Didn't.

A GUEST was expected for dinner. And Bobby had received 5 cents as the price of his silence during the meal. He was as quiet as a mouse until, discovering that his favorite dessert was being served, he could not longer curb his enthusiasm. He drew the coin from his pocket and, rolling it across the table, exclaimed: "Here's your nickel, mamma. I'd rather talk!"—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

"I SEE," said the sad young man, "that Ermitude has a new automobile." "Yes, her papa gave her a dandy," bubbled the joyful youth. "And how does she like it?" "She says she is madly in love with it."

Catching Up.

WHY do you insist upon having the biggest share of the pudding, Harry?" asked the mother of a small boy. "Isn't your older brother entitled to it?" "No, he isn't," replied the little fellow. "He was eating pudding two years before I was born."

YOU GOTTA DO IT!

Why She Wept.

A PROPOS of the numerous influential malefactors whose prison terms are either annulled or cut down to nothing, Mayor Brand Whitlock of Toledo said a short while ago:

"Is it a good thing for the public to let these men out so soon?" "It was sympathizing one afternoon with a poor woman whose husband had just been sent to jail. She was weeping bitterly, and I said to her:

"Now, don't take it so hard. Two years is a long sentence. I know, but he may not have to serve it all. Convicts who behave themselves often get out months before their appointed time."

"That's just it," she replied, still sobbing. "Henry can be an angel when he likes!"—Lippincott's.

Alert. "What is you wife's attitude toward your coming home late?" "It's one of watchful waiting."

Needed Posting

SCAR W. UNDERWOOD of Alabama, leader of the House of Representatives, considers the following one of his best stories.

"Mrs. Underwood had been annoyed by the colored cook's entertaining company in the kitchen, and went to the kitchen on some errand. In the kitchen cooker sat a great, husky darky, eating a huge piece of pie. Very indignant, Mrs. Underwood hastened back to the dining room.

"Gerty," she demanded, "what have I told you about having your bean in the kitchen?"

"Oh, Lor', miss," replied Gerty, "he ain't no bean! That coon ain't nuffin' but my brudder."

"Somewhat mollified, Mrs. Underwood returned to the kitchen.

"So you are Gerty's brother?" she inquired kindly.

"Lor' bless yo', no, miss," he said. "I ain't no 'laton' 't all to Gerty. I's jes' keepin' company wif her."

"Mrs. Underwood, mighty angry, sought out Gerty again.

"Gerty," she said sternly, "why did you tell me that man in the kitchen was your brother? He has just told me that he is no relation to you."

"Gerty looked aghast. Then, turning in the direction of the kitchen, she said:

"Yo' de Lawd's sakes, Mis' Underwood, did that good-fur-nothin' thing say dat? Jes' yo' stay here a minute an' I'll come look ag'in!"

DID you follow the thread of her discourse?"

"No, I soon saw that she just wanted to string me."

Transfers

The ruling of Judge Grimm concerning the transfer being fair to the United Railways Company of St. Louis, and the protection which his finding gives against its improper use, being deemed adequate, the Company will at once take the necessary steps to inaugurate the use of a transfer which will "transport passengers by a continuous trip from any point on the system to any other point on the system." An entire new form of transfer is necessary and new machinery and plates for preparing them must be installed. This work will be vigorously prosecuted and the new transfer will be ready inside of sixty days.

The Company will make the delivery of the passenger "from any point on the system to any other point on the system" as pleasant, as safe and speedy as can be accomplished by industrious painstaking and persevering attention, the purpose being to honestly and faithfully comply with the requirements of the ordinance.

Due notice and complete detail of the method will be published later.

ROBT. McCULLOCH,
President.
